Uncle Sam.

The above is the name of one of the best harness oils ever made. It has been thoroughly tested in every way as a leather preserver and has been found a very superior article for oiling all kinds of leather, harness, carriage tops, boots, shoes, etc. It will make old hard leather as soft and pliable as when new. It also benefits the stitching, making the thread more durable by keeping out the wet. It puts on a good black finish which will not rub off. One oiling with this oil will last as long as three oilings with any other, thus saving largely in the time, labor and expense of applying. The customer who has used it one season will always keep a supply on hand, for it proves its worth in a very short time. Remember that the exclusive agency for the sale of this Uncle Sam's Harness Oil has been established at Saur's Drug and Paint store. That it costs no more than good 3rd oil or neatfoot oil, and that every gallon is warranted to give satisfaction.

A Gentleman in Toledo.

Inquiring for Dr. France at the Burnet House this afternoon, a Poster was presented to a gentleman of about medium size, pleasant address and a thoroughly intelligent cast of countenance. His manner is open and hearty and his actions quick and business like. The doctor had but a moment in which to say that Toledo was paying him the compliments of a liberal patronage, his room having been crowded since early morn. The doctor comes among us with an established reputation for skill and ability in the successful treatment of various diseases to which mankind is heir. Both consultation and examination are free, and the doctor only asks that you do not condemn until you call and judge for yourself. He gives a long list of references which include many of the leading practitioners of the country. Dr. France will be at the Miller House, Napoleon, Wednesday, March 4th.

ED. NORTHWEST.—Seeing quite a number of Jackson Democrats alluded to in your paper, would say Liberty can produce one more, which add to the list Mr. Joseph Hoover, who voted for Jackson in 1828, it being his first vote. Mr. H. has voted for every Democratic candidate for President since. Mr. Hoover was born in Fairfield county, Ohio, March 10th, 1807. In the year 1848 he removed to Henry county, Ohio, to participate in the Maumee hardships, which he has braved through to the present time. Mr. H. being of a robust constitution has withstood his three score years and ten and over. In the harvest of 1884 he made his hand and took up his station after the reaper. He is a weaver by trade and carried on that business up to 1848 and at intervals since. He served his apprenticeship with Mr. A. M. Stout at or near Circleville, Ohio.

A GUEST.

NAPOLEON, O., Feb. 24, 1885.

ED. NORTHWEST.—Permit me through the columns of your paper to make brief mention of the pleasant social gathering at the residence of Michael Murphy, of Liberty township, on last Monday the 23d inst., that being the fiftieth birthday anniversary of Mr. Murphy. His estimable lady and her neighbors decided to give him a surprise, therefore invitations were issued and by 12 o'clock about fifty guests, great and small, had arrived and were warmly welcomed by Mr. Murphy (who began to mistrust the cause of the gathering), their teams bountifully provided for, and themselves snugly ensconced in his ample parlors where all seemed to enjoy themselves with gay chat and joyous laughter. About 2:30 o'clock p. m. the long dining room was thrown open and a sumptuous repast was disclosed to the eyes of the lively hungry guests and all were invited to seat themselves at the table and partake of the substantial and toothsome viands. All present did ample justice to the meal provided. At 4 o'clock p. m., the presents were placed on a table and presented by Mr. Robert McCasky in a neat little speech appropriate for the occasion and responded to by Mr. Murphy, who tendered his sincere thanks to the friends assembled, after which the guests began to disperse, especially the older people. The young people were invited to stay and "trip the light fantastic toe," which they did till the "wee sma' hours," to music furnished by their indulgent host. May Mr. Murphy enjoy many happy returns of the pleasant day, is the wish of all.

After being comfortably housed at the Heacock House, the party was kindly joined by Mr. H. H. East, who took it upon himself to chaperon the party, or at least the gentlemen part of it, around town, showing them the lady barbers, the opera house, the Times office, and the Holgate elephant in all of its different forms. After a substantial supper our friend East again showed his entertaining qualities by introducing the visiting party to quite a number of the people of Holgate, whom he invited in to take part in the social enjoyments of the evening. Prof. Lindley with his frolicsome fiddle, ably accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Van Hynning, soon had part of the company upon their feet and a quadrille or two was highly enjoyed. But the hour of parting came around with its usual regularity and by midnight the Napoleon party at least were all snugly tucked away in bed at home, perhaps to dream of friends left in Holgate, or of High and his "foot liniment," or—well, who knows?
